Constant Contact Meets the Payment Processing Needs of Event Marketers with WePay

About Constant Contact

Constant Contact introduced the first email marketing tool for small businesses, nonprofits, and associations in 1998. Today, the company helps more than 650,000 customers worldwide find marketing success through the only all-in-one online marketing platform for small organizations. Anchored by its world-class email marketing tool, Constant Contact helps small businesses drive repeat business and find new customers. It features multi-channel marketing campaigns including newsletters/announcements, offers/promotions, online listings, events/registration, and feedback combined with shared content, contacts, and reporting; free award-winning coaching and product support; and integrations with critical business tools – all from a single login.

The Challenge

While most people know Constant Contact for its pioneering work in email marketing, today, the company provides small businesses with value well beyond the email marketing space. With Constant Contact, users can run social media campaigns, solicit and accept donations, offer and manage promotions, conduct customer surveys, and publicize and manage registration for events. Some of these business functions include the collection of payments, and Constant Contact wanted to provide users with a range of payment options to meet their varying needs. In particular, event marketers and ticket sellers had a special set of needs:

- Simple sign-up process: Event customers often chose Constant Contact to help with a specific event that would happen soon, so the sign-up process had to be fast and easy so they could get up and running quickly.
- Accept payments fast: Event customers needed to start selling their tickets immediately, so they didn't have time for an extended approval process before they could accept their first credit card payment.
- No upfront fees: Event marketers might not realize significant revenue until their event was over, so upfront fees to process payments didn't fit their business model.

The Solution

In late 2013, Constant Contact decided to add WePay as a payment option in its event management product. Almost immediately, WePay differentiated itself with its fast, simple integration and seamless onboarding process.

Rather than requiring a redirect to a third party website and a lengthy underwriting process before a payment could be accepted, WePay could get new users up and running in minutes without event customers ever having to leave the Constant Contact interface. In addition, Constant Contact's development team found WePay's technical documentation both thorough and easy to digest, so they could get working quickly. What's more, when the team needed additional assistance, they found WePay provided highly responsive, quality support.

The Results

Constant Contact launched WePay as a payment option in May 2014, and users quickly responded favorably to WePay's ease-of-use and efficiency. Key benefits included:

- Simple and streamlined onboarding experience: Customers signing up to use WePay as a payment processor were able to do so quickly and easily, with minimal information needed for them to get started—a major win for time-limited small businesses and nonprofits using the product.
- Speed to acceptance of donations: Because of the limited information required to get started, users could be up, running, and accepting payments very quickly.
- Focus on small businesses: WePay's focus on supporting small businesses, combined with its ease-of-use, and quality customer support enabled anyone to accept online payments, even with no prior experience in payment processing.

We've found that when our customers are heavily engaged with our products, they have more success, and they remain customers for longer. Having integrated payment processing methods like WePay helps customers stay engaged, and is a win-win for our customers and Constant Contact alike.
